

Christmas looks brighter

PLEASANTON — WE SELL PEACE OF MIND.

The brown pickup truck with the white camper top is almost fitted out now. Rows of brass key blanks dangle in neat rows from hooks on the walls.

Mysterious-looking machines will soon be hooked up to a power source. Carpeting of yellow, orange and brown gives the floor a cozy look.

The peace-of-mind slogan is printed on plastic signs on the doors of the truck above TRI-VALLEY LOCKSMITHS. Sam Sutphen is in business.

Sam Sutphen — the man whose plight at Christmas-time touched the hearts of hundreds of Valley residents to offer the family food, clothing and cash — is embarking on a locksmith's career.

Although burdened at the moment with the huge expenses connected with opening a small business, he and his wife, Kathleen, are hoping to be doing well enough by Christmas '75 to share their good fortune with another needy family, just as others have shared their prosperity with the Sutphens.

It will be a happy contrast with Christmas Eve, '74, when the little family (including four-year-old Benji) didn't have much for their holiday table, much less for under the Christmas tree.

Sam was sidelined with a permanent back injury after an industrial accident at the plastics factory where he had been working in Nevada.

The welfare and Social Security checks were stuck somewhere in a bureaucratic morass, the food stamps hadn't come and the family was despairing. Kathleen's older two children from a previous marriage were in Nevada with their father because she couldn't afford to keep the family together.

Kathleen, a vivacious redhead, had been hoping to study for a nursing career and in fact got halfway through with her studies this spring. But it was hard leaving her little boy with babysitters all the time, and Sam needed a book-keeper. So she's putting off her medical career for a while to keep the books.

Meanwhile, husband Sam was being sent to school by the state Department of Rehabilitation. The state paid the $715 tuition to send him to Golden Gate School of Lock Technology, a five-month course in Oakland. The state also allowed him $120 a month for transportation and meals away from home.

Sam passed the course with flying colors and came out a certified, bonded locksmith.

"It's a recession-proof business," he says confidently. "And the Valley can use another full-time locksmith."

He obviously enjoys the challenge of practicing the many fine skills a locksmith needs, from giving a house a security check to installing a formidable deadbolt to breaking into someone's car when they've been locked out.

"Anyone can order the tool kit you need to break into a car," he says with disbelief, displaying the weird-looking collection of hooked screwdrivers and curving strips of metal.)

He also believes in his work and so does Kathleen, who can't believe how casual people are about moving into an older home or apartment to which many former tenants may have the key. She also notes construction workers sometimes hold master keys to brand-new apartments or homes.

"Most people seem to get new locks after their home has already been robbed," she muses. "That's like shutting the gate after the horse has gotten out!"

One thing that appalled the Sutphens was the cost of getting started in business. But the state stepped in with thousands of dollars worth of machines and tools purchased for Sam — key-making machines, special saws and hammers and chisels and drills, to name a few.

It cost Sam plenty, too, to buy the truck and fit it out with an inventory of blank keys, as well as to buy the other new and used tools he had to have.

Although he works with a mobile unit (because it would cost another $500 a month to operate a shop), Sam pays hundreds of dollars a month just for a business phone, Yellow Pages listing, business insurance and so on.

He just started working in June, and expenses are still far above his profits. But he's expecting things to level off soon.

And when they do, one of the first things the struggling young family plan to do is to share their "peace of mind" with other needy Valley dwellers.

CARD after signatures

Redevelopment forces rally

PLEASANTON — Pleasanton's anti-redevelopment forces officially organized themselves into Citizens Against Re-Development (CARD) Tuesday night.

The group began circulating petitions Wednesday aimed at forcing the city council to postpone adoption of the redevelopment plan on Aug. 11.

Because of the controversy the redevelopment plan has caused, City Attorney Ken Scheidig said the staff would recommend such a continuance at the council's Aug. 11 meeting, so the petition may be unnecessary.

CARD plans to circulate it anyway in an attempt to get as many signatures as possible to show the council the depth and breadth of opposition feeling to the redevelopment plans.

The Executive Board of the newly organized group was more successful in choosing a name than in defining the objectives of the organization.

The 12 members present at the Pleasanton Hotel Tuesday thrashed around various arguments regarding redevelopment for two hours and finally came up with two conflicting philosophical views.

Some of those present were totally opposed to the basic concept of redevelopment, no matter what benefits might be derived.

Others, however, are opposed to redevelopment as it is now proposed because they feel there are many questions that have not yet been answered. If the city can answer those questions and prove it will be a good thing, they might become supporters.

The major concern voiced by CARD members Tuesday night dealt with what they believe to be the "dictatorial powers" the agency has over private property.

Those powers are far broader than the authority invested in the city council — which also acts as the Pleasanton Redevelopment Agency — and CARD maintains those powers are broader than they need be to accomplish the redevelopment agency's main objectives.

The PRA was established last July and, throughout the last year, the staff has been working with a Sacramento consultant who specializes in redevelopment plans to insure the proper legal and procedural steps were followed.

The objective of the plan is to minimize the economic impact of the regional shopping center on the downtown business district by using the money generated from taxes on the increased assessed valuation of the shopping center property to pay for needed public improvements in the downtown.

That, city officials hope, will encourage private industry to invest in the Central Business District.

CARD raises a number of questions they believe need to be addressed. Since the whole objective of the redevelopment agency is to "save downtown," CARD believes the city should first seriously consider whether downtown is worth saving.

If it is worth saving, they believe, the city should ask, "Does downtown need saving?"

Many of those at Tuesday's meeting contend the downtown will not be adversely affected by the regional shopping center because it has already been economically damaged by competition from Dublin's commercial district.

If downtown needs saving, CARD adds, it must be determined that redevelopment will actually do it. "What happens," they ask, "if the redevelopment plan is adopted and the shopping center doesn't come in? Where will the money come from?"

Although many of the persons at Tuesday's session — and the great majority of those who attended Monday night's hastily called meeting — are opposed to redevelopment, CARD Chairman Bernard Gerton insists the group does not have a closed mind on the subject.

ed and the shopping center doesn't come in? Where will the money come from?"

Others questions raised by CARD include, "Can we save downtown, regardless of how much money we spend?" and finally, "Do we want to save downtown if it means subjecting ourselves to the dictatorial terms imposed by the redevelopment agency?"

CARD plans to attend the neighborhood meetings scheduled on the redevelopment plan, research the questions it believes must be addressed and then formulate a recommendation for the council.

Although many of the persons at Tuesday's session — and the great majority of those who attended Monday night's hastily called meeting — are opposed to redevelopment, CARD Chairman Bernard Gerton insists the group does not have a closed mind on the subject.

"It is an improper attitude to automatically assume its bad before you know what it's all about," he told the Executive Board Tuesday night. Others on the board did not necessarily agree with that view, although Wally Mayer said, "I don't understand redevelopment. That's why I'm here. I want to find out more about it before I make up my mind."

The CARD petitions will be available at Wells Fargo Bank, Valley Bank, Bank of America, First National Bank, W.H. Mayer and Associates, Larsen and Gerton Realty, Antonini Insurance, Pleasanton Hotel, Lucky's and Safeway.

The group is also setting up a fund for contributions to help pay for the expenses they will incur and donations should be made out to "Citizens Against Re-Development" and sent to Joe Antonini Insurance at 374 Ray St.

LLL finds crucial evidence

Power by fusion possible

A Lawrence Livermore Laboratory experiment has provided a key bit of evidence that controlled thermonuclear fusion is a viable power source.

Dr. Robert Seamans, Administrator of the Energy Research and Development Administration (ERDA), made that announcement yesterday at a press conference in San Francisco.

Fusion — the combining of two atoms to produce energy — is the power source that heats the sun, and its fuel can be easily extracted from sea water. Many scientists view controlled fusion as the solution to mankind's energy problems for literally thousands of years.

The LLL experiment — run by Dr. Frederic Coensgen — proved that previously untested theories about plasma behavior at high temperatures were correct.

The tests were run on an experimental device called 2X-11B, which attempts to confine the fuel in a magnetic "bottle."

However, since the temperature of the fuel in this past experiment reached 250 million degrees Fahrenheit, the fuel turns into an extremely unstable hot gas called a "plasma."

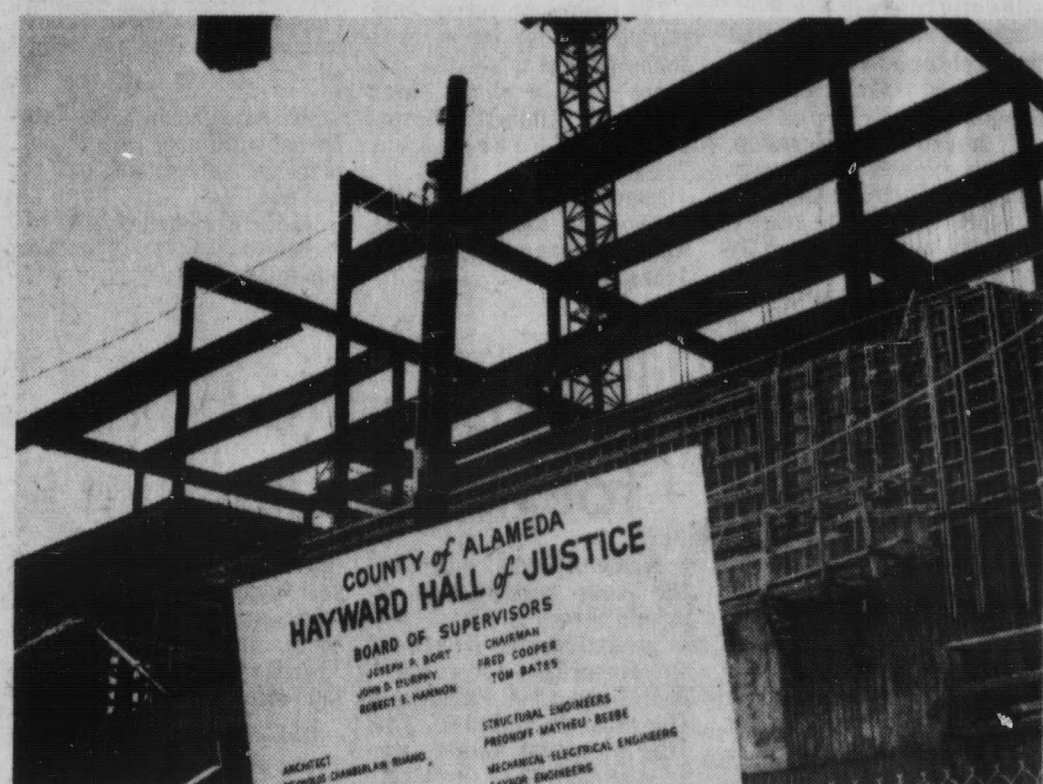

Eventually, scientists hope to contain enough deuterium — a variant of hydrogen — in a magnetic bottle of sufficient heat so that two deuterium atoms will fuse into a helium atom and release energy.

However, problems have arisen in keeping the plasma confined in the bottle at temperatures in the 100 million degree range. For commercial fusion, temperatures in the 1 billion degree range must be achieved, and so some researchers felt that this line of inquiry was doomed to failure since a gas is heated it becomes more and more unstable.

Some theorists, though, believed that beyond a certain temperature the plasma would become more stable, thus allowing more fusion to

Mum's the word

All quiet on arrest

Alameda County Sheriff's Deputies and the California Highway Patrol were "reluctant" to comment on the Monday night arrest of Alameda County Planning Commissioner George Spiliotopoulos yesterday, as an aura of anonymous "no comments" emerged from all valley law enforcement agencies.

A woman at the CHP's Hayward offices, which handled the original arrest on charges of reckless driving, told The Times the patrol "is not allowed to give out information on an arrest report," not even confirmation of the time, date and place.

Her superior was unavailable for comment.

A spokesman for the Santa Rita Rehabilitation Center, which charged the former Pleasanton City Councilman and Mayor Pro Tempore with resisting arrest following a physical confrontation at the facility's booking station, said the department "looks into all these sorts of things," but would not elaborate on the extent of any internal investigation.

Deputy District Attorney Harry Murphy sent the sheriff's report back to the jail Tuesday for "more details," and reportedly was in conference yesterday with sheriff's officials.

Murphy has not yet signed a complaint.

Spiliotopoulos was arrested late Monday night in Castro Valley on charges of reckless driving. He was booked at Santa Rita and allegedly became involved in a fracas with deputies.

The battered owner of Pleasanton's Cheese Factory was released shortly before 4 a.m. and taken to Valley Memorial Hospital.

Questions still fly as to why Spiliotopoulos was arrested for reckless driving after passing a field sobriety test.

An arrest on a reckless driving charge, however, is "very odd," according to one anonymous source.

A profile of the man

Frank Ivaldi - the man who built Sunol Golf Course

By Walt Hecox

This is the third of a series of stories about Frank Ivaldi, the man who constructed Sunol Golf Course and a central figure in the controversy which has lasted a year and a half.

Frank Ivaldi's path from an over-age, $300 truck to a place of wealth and prominence as head of East Bay Excavating was long and by no means direct.

His small excavating business grew slightly from the pick and shovel days and was prospering but by no means impressive by the time World War II reached the United States and equipment became almost impossible to procure.

Without the needed equipment progress was impossible and Frank, in need of steady income which was not coming in from the business, took a civil service examination for one of 11 positions open on the Oakland Police Department.

Three hundred took the test and 11 were chosen.

"I didn't do too well," Ivaldi remembers. "I was 7th on the list."

That seventh place was not easily attained. Without a high school diploma, Frank first had to have that considerable detail waived.

He procured copies of past examinations, determined as nearly as possible, what subjects he would have to cover most closely and with Corie's help studied long hours at night preparing for the examination.

The perseverance paid off and Ivaldi spent the next five years as a member of the Oakland Police Department.

Detailed to the traffic squad, Frank served his early years aboard a motorcycle, a task he did not relish, but one from which he emerged unscathed.

Determined not to get what the motorcycle men called "gravel rash" Frank never fell.

"I never went down," he declared. "While I was on that detail two men were killed."

From the bike he moved over to a special commercial detail, a duty his extensive knowledge of trucks gave him special qualifications.

He checked trucks and commercial vehicles for safety and paid special attention to taxi cabs, many of which presented a special problem at the time.

There was a time during World War II that if a man wanted anything special and often illegal, he could get it from a taxi driver, at least some of them.

Women, drugs, booze, it was all available if a sailor on liberty had the name of the right driver.

Ivaldi's job was to hold down the vice as much as possible and there he did a good job, as he did on the bikes, although not one always to his superior's liking.

To Ivaldi a man never deserved a ticket unless the case against him was iron clad. He never issued what he calls a marginal ticket.

"I paid for that," he remembers. "Whenever there was a tough special detail or a holiday to work, I was chosen for the job. They never told us how many tickets to write but they kept a tally at the end of the month."

When the war ended Ivaldi could see potential riches in the construction business and, itching to return, he took two six month leaves of absence and eventually quit to form East Bay Excavating.

He moved fast from there on. Working with surplus equipment, nothing new was available but a horde of construction projects were in the planning stages, he rented Roberts' Coal Yard on High Street in Alameda, moved to east Oakland for about a five year period then moved to Marina Avenue in San Leandro. (First Avenue at the time.)

He purchased his first quarry while there on a site since sold to the Cerebral Palsy Association and concentrated his efforts on excavating work for roadbuilding and development projects.

The Ivaldi formula for success was simple and ingenious, the rare demonstration of foresight and a capable and fearless gambler's heart.

Frank took huge amounts of clean fill from the projects which were his central task, purchased San Leandro and Hayward lowlands and made them suitable for building with that fill.

The land, which he purchased in 30 to 40 acre lots at from $2,000 to $3,000 an acre rose in value to about $1.15 a square foot.

When the San Leandro City Council, acting with foresight which matched Frank's, passed a bond issue forming an industrial district, Ivaldi was ready. Eighty percent of the industrial fill in the city was placed there by East Bay excavating.

The years passed, purchased a portion of a huge quarry high on the Hayward Hills, constructed his own asphalt plant and was "rode with the growth of the area" to success and some wealth.

Then, in 1964 or 65 he rode into the Sunol Valley and found a golf course. That ride changed the life of Ivaldi and a lot of other people.

Power fusion

take place before the bottle let the plasma escape. Coengen's experiment proved that the plasma indeed does become more stable at the 250 million degree level, which was a key step.

If the plasma had continued to be more and more unstable as the temperature rose, it would have been quite possible that the whole line of research would have been dropped.

Although the plasma was confined for five-thousandths of a second, for fusion to work on a commercial scale it must be contained 100 times longer.

The temperature must be increased four-fold from the LLL experiment and the plasma density — how much gas is in the magnetic bottle — must jump by a factor of three.

The next move for Coengen and fellow scientists Thomas Simonen, William Cummings, Grant Logan, Arthur Molvik, William Nexsen, Barry Stallard and William Turner is to step up 2X-11B even further.

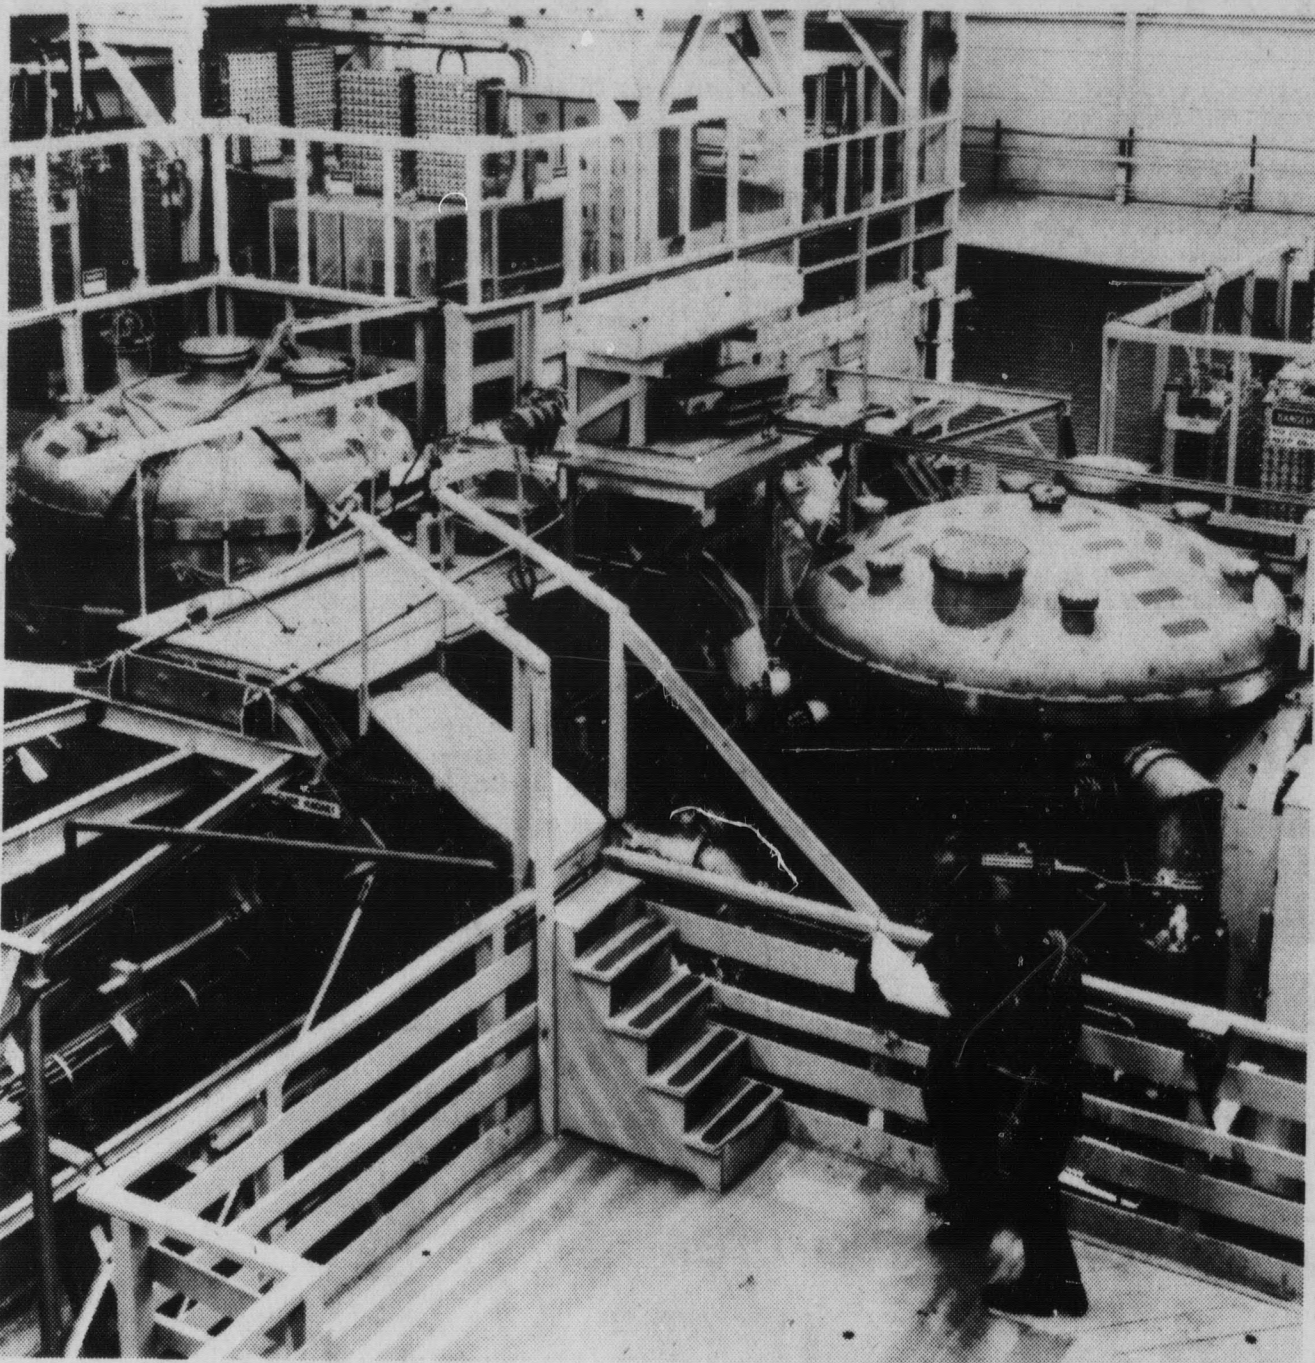

To do that, they hope to supercool the magnets — down to just a few degrees above absolute zero — to increase their power and thus decrease the size of the bottle, replace the present plasma gun with a laser and double the energy of the neutral beam that carries extra fuel into the bottle.

If that can be done, LLL researchers believe they can double the temperature of the plasma to 500 million degrees. Theoretically, the plasma should be even more stable at that heat, thus increasing the confinement time.

Seamans, who spoke before a crowded news conference, said "I would expect that within the next four, five or six years we really will be able to demonstrate that fusion is scientifically feasible."

Even the most optimistic fusion experts concede that this type of energy will not come in time to help out in the present energy crisis, but if it can be developed, a long term solution to the energy problem will have been found.

— by Clay Kallam

This complex maze of machinery could hold the answer to the world's energy problems.

Oppose bus curtailment

COVA may fight BART

LIVERMORE - Councilwoman Helen Tirsell will try to orchestrate a valley-wide protest through the Congress of Valley Agencies (COVA) to BART's proposed discontinuance of feeder bus service. "We've paid and paid and paid dearly. We deserve the subsidy," she commented at the city council meeting Monday night.

The councilwoman's first suggestion was to have the city direct a letter to BART, giving a history of the valley's support and what its citizens have paid in tax money.

It was City Manager Bill Parness, however, who suggested an orchestrated valley community effort to oppose cutting off the bus service.

Tirsell, who is chairwoman of COVA, said she would bring up the suggestion at the next COVA meeting.

In other business, the council:

- Instructed the city manager to make an appointment for council members to meet with Alameda County Supervisor Charles Santana to discuss the city's suggestions for supervisory restructuring.
- Continued to Aug. 4 consideration of a Kissell Company contract amendment pertaining to 32 lots in the area north of I-580.
- Voted unanimously to have the city attorney send notice to airport fixed base operator David Madis that he is required to terminate his tenancy due to delinquent payments. Noncompliance will effect foreclosure, it was voted.

- Authorized the city manager to continue for two weeks negotiations for the future Isabel Highway right-of-way acquisition.
- Continued to Aug. 18 study of suggested changes to the trailer storage zoning ordinance as recommended by the planning commission.
- Generally accepted The Matador's food service as complying with required conditions but asked the policy be posted behind the bar. Patrons at the cocktail lounge in the East Avenue shopping center may order food from an adjoining pizza parlor or deli.
- Accepted the resignation of Walt Griffith from the Community Affairs Committee and instructed a letter thanking him for his services be sent.

Mori concerned over withdrawal

In a letter sent to BART Board President Richard Clark, Assemblyman Floyd Mori voiced his concern over the possibility that BART might withdraw the feeder bus system to the Livermore-Amador Valley.

Mori's letter was prompted by BART General Manager Frank Herring's recent remark about the cost of the feeder bus system.

Herring received board approval to review the bus system — as part of a total budget review — and report back with a recommendation on its future by Oct. 1.

In his letter, Mori reminded the BART board of its unconditional commitment to provide bus transportation to valley residents until such time as a permanent rail system can be established. "This commitment must be met," Mori added, "in order to develop effective, long range transportation management plans between the valley and the rest of the Bay Area."

Mori observed that the district appears to be so engrossed with present problems that it cannot see the irreparable damage it may be causing to the long-range prospects of public transportation.

Such a move, Mori stated, "would undoubtedly cause a continued loss of BART to the already disillusioned valley residents. This deterioration of public trust may eventually result in reverse incentives to the use of public transportation."

Mori also indicated his continuing support for effective education availability of viable alternatives to private transportation. "These beginning efforts must be consistent in order to insure public support for transportation systems," he stated.

No early occupancy

Two weeks to finish

LIVERMORE - The Livermore Gardens "low-income" complex on East Avenue should be completed within two weeks, developer Robert Hirsch told the city council.

But despite his predictions and assurances, the council as a matter of policy refused Hirsch's request for advance occupancy of some of the units.

It did, however, permit him to make arrangements with PG&E to test the electricity in the 96 units.

Hirsch made the request to the city council Monday night on behalf of 16 of his 57 applicants who need to move into the apartments immediately. "It's not hurting me, it's hurting the people," he explained.

Hirsch also defended the high rents in the apartment complex, which is billed as "low income" housing.

"The rents are simply a product of inflation. I never said they would be $100," he stated.

Of the prospective renters, annual incomes range from $6,400 to $12,000 and a number of future residents are new Lawrence Livermore Laboratory employees, Hirsch said.

When the council indicated it would not permit advance occupancy of the apartment buildings, Hirsch noted he never had a problem like this with a city before.

"Maybe they haven't had the problems we've had," commented Councilwoman Helen Tirsell.

At the end of the discussion, Hirsch expressed concern that he would once again have to appear before the council when the complex was fully completed.

Councilman Don Miller explained the apartments would be released as a matter of routine upon completion.

"Once it's completed, you don't have to come back and see us anymore," the councilman said, not without humor.

"It will be my pleasure," the developer replied in the same vein.

The council also considered an advance occupancy request from Longs Drugs which has scheduled its grand opening at the Livermore Arcade on First Street for next Wednesday.

According to the city's chief building inspector, Herb Street, a few minor items remain to be completed.

Council members insisted Longs obtain a quitclaim from the Southern Pacific Development Company, (the landowners) and instructed Street to work closely with the store on those items remaining.

Longs will receive its permit as soon as the work is completed, predicted to be by the end of this week.

Assault charges filed after fracas

LIVERMORE - Charges of assault with a deadly weapon were filed Wednesday against a city resident following an alleged family disturbance in which the man purportedly shot at his daughter's boyfriend.

Leland K. Nomura, 36, was released after appearing in court following his arrest early Tuesday morning.

According to police reports, Nomura originally was arrested for attempted murder after allegedly firing a .22-caliber revolver at Bob L. Johnson, 18, when Johnson and Nomura became embroiled in an argument on Nomura's 641 Orion Way porch.

The embroglio purportedly started Monday night when Johnson went to see the Nomura family about their daughter, Kimberly Ros-senau.

Nomura and Johnson were arguing on the front porch when Nomura swung at him, Johnson said.

The youth said he ran from the home yelling "Chase me," at Nomura and the father replied, "You have 30 seconds to be hidden in the vineyard," before dashing into his home.

Johnson told police he got in his car and drove off. As he was turning into Orion Way, he continued, he heard cries of "No! No!" from the porch, then the gun shot.

Johnson's aunt and uncle, Frances and Melvin Hensley, 2112 Orion Ct., concurred in their story, adding that Mr. Hensley tried to stop his nephew when the youth first went to the home.

Mrs. Hensley told police she saw Nomura fire the gun, but added she "doesn't know which way the gun was pointed."

She said Nomura got into his car after Johnson left, but that she talked him out of leaving.

Nomura complied and returned to his home, giving the gun to Mr. Hensley.

Classic fire box for new restaurant

Standing proudly in front of the Scotts residence on St. John's Street in Pleasanton, is an antique Harp Pedestal fire alarm box. According to John Benn, Chief Fire Alarm Operator in Oakland, this type of alarm system was first installed in the early 1900's and has not been in use since the early 1940's.

Originally built by the United Iron Works of Oakland, it is made of solid cast iron and extremely heavy. The alarm box portion is gone, leaving an empty hole in the center, which the owners hope to fill with a bell in the future.

It's painted with its original bright red with an eagle Union shield on the lower half.

The only alarm box such as this still in use is located on 40th and Piedmont Sts. in Oakland, according to Mr. Benn. Another has been restored and donated to the Oakland Museum.

This particular piece was acquired by Mrs. Theresa Scott, an avid antique collector, whose husband owns The Villa Armando Winery, next door to their home on St. John's Street.

The Scotts are currently in Europe collecting more antiques they hope to display in the new restaurant they plan to open next to the winery. They hope to use the fire alarm box as a decorative light standard in front of the new restaurant.

Relva M. Tefteller

Relva M. Tefteller, 58, of Livermore, died Monday following a downtown auto accident.

A resident of Livermore for the past one and one-half years, she was a licensed vocational nurse at the Veterans Administration Hospital after having worked in several VA hospitals across the country following WAR II service in the U. S. Navy Nurse Corps.

She is survived by a daughter, Linda Deal, of Ohio; her mother, Mrs. Mary Nichols, Michigan; four brothers, Ronald, Thomas, Robert and Lambert Nichols, all of Michigan; and a grandson, Jeffery Jolliff of Ohio.

Funeral services will be held Saturday in Midland, Michigan, with interment in the Midland City Cemetery. Local arrangements are under the direction of the Callaghan Mortuary, Livermore. Contributions in her memory may be made to the Northern California Diabetes Association, 255 Hugo St., San Francisco, Calif., 94122.

Samuel Higuera

Samuel L. Higuera of Pleasanton died Monday, July 28 at Valley Memorial Hospital in Livermore. He was 62.

He was a life-long resident of Pleasanton and 34-year employee of the Alameda County Fair Association. He is survived by his wife, Dorothy, sons Samuel Higuera Jr. of Livermore, and Stephen Higuera of Pleasanton, and one daughter, Yvone Halter of Pleasanton.

He also leaves one brother, Alfred, and three sisters, Isabel Medeiros of Pleasanton, Metilda Medeiros of Pleasanton, and Marie Citrone of Pleasanton.

Rosary services will be held Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the Graham-Hitch Mortuary, 675 St. John, Pleasanton. Funeral services will be held Friday, August 1 at 10 a.m. in St. Augustine's Catholic Church. Burial will follow in the church cemetery.

Love knows no strangers among homeless children

By REINA WHITNEY

There are two families living on opposite sides of Pleasanton. They have never met, yet they have a bond of love in common stronger than most friendships.

They are Roberta and Gene Dick of Christina Court, and Gwen and Phil Younger of Ridgevale Lane. Both families have adopted Korean orphans.

The Holt Adoption Program, Inc. of Eugene, Ore., through which each family received children, stipulates that the basic requirement for adoption is "a love for children and the ability to provide security and moderate advantages until the child is independent."

The description couldn't be more perfect for this pair of families.

Phil Younger, long time owner of the Standard Station on Main St., and his wife, Gwen, are the parents of six children — all adopted! They live in a lovely large six bedroom home in Pleasanton Valley. Their children are enjoying more than moderate advantages and the love and security they new parents. All four parents agreed that the warnings of adjustment were not necessary. The children adjusted so easily and quickly that it wasn't long before they were thoroughly Americanized.

In some cases, this acquiring of the more uninhibited American habits was unfortunate. When all the children came to the United States, they were very polite, extremely neat, and gifted with the beautiful manners more inherent to the Asian cultures.

The introduction of strange new foods to the children was never a problem for either family. In fact, they had to call a halt many times, because they all seem to have voracious appetites.

Neither family has ever been confronted with prejudices from neighbors; quite the opposite. Kris Younger started kindergarten three weeks after he arrived. The children immediately "adopted" him, taught him English quickly, and were constantly calling the house with invitations to play.

When Roberta and Gene Dick were notified that the daughter they had long awaited would soon arrive, their friends were as happy as they, and surprised them with a "baby" shower of gifts and generous merchandise certificates.

Jung Ok Kang joined the Dick family on May 20, 1975. Her new brothers Gene 11, Ken 10, and sisters Judy 9, and Kathleen 6, were all at the airport to meet her. Since she came on the same plane as the Mayaguez crew, there was also a band and many dignitaries at the airport too.

Although she'll be four in September, she is the size of a petite two-year-old. Only familiar with her native Korean language barely two months ago, she already speaks perfect English, sprinkled with a few "O.K.'s" and "Oh, darn's."

Gene Dick is an engineer with the Oakland Fire Department. His family of now five children, lives in a modest, but very attractive, three bedroom home. Their decision to take in another child was a family cooperative ven-

Re-Entry center eases return to college

Valley residents returning to school or contemplating higher education can receive assistance from a new trial program underway at California State University at Hayward.

Entitled "Re-Entry," the program welcomes and assists those interested in doing college work, but anxious about rusty study habits, college requirements, or overall adjustment to school.

At the on-campus Re-Entry Center, 35 volunteers offer peer advising, assistance in obtaining information about Cal State, and form a liaison between the university and the community.

Co-ordinator Virginia Jones explains that "the program's two-fold emphasis is to bring the hesitant person support in returning to school, and to assist those already in school.

"Although Re-Entry aims primarily to reach the older student, we will assist anyone who has been away from college for an extended period of time."

The Re-Entry Center, located in Room 569 of the administration building on the Cal State campus, is open 8 a.m. to 10 p.m.

RESTAURANT TRAINEES LEARN BY DOING

NOVATO, Calif. (Ap) — Restaurant trainees at Novato High School are learning not only food preparation, but how to serve it as well.

And those benefitting are senior citizens.

Every Tuesday and Thursday beginning at 5:30 p.m. the students serve evening meals to senior citizens, at a cost of $1.50 each.

Meals are prepared and served by students in the Regional Occupational Program.

The senior citizens are asked to make reservations so that the students will know how many meals they will be expected to serve.

A team on and off stage

By PAT WIDDER

Marie and Fred Cochran made a pact with each other when they agreed to try out for parts in the Pleasanton Playhouse production of "The King and I."

For the sake of family unity, they agreed they would not participate unless both of them received parts.

As it turned out, Marie was cast as Anna and Fred was given the role of the King of Siam.

That role of the proper English lady who travels to Siam to teach the king's children will be a big change for Marie, who played the vamp Mona Kent in the Pleasanton Playhouse performance of "Dames at Sea" in March and then gave a smashing performance as the gun moll Adelaide in the Contra Costa Musical Theater production of "Guys and Dolls" from April through June.

At least in "The King and I", she and her husband will be able to spend some time together, although much of that will be rehearsal time.

Fred is western regional sales manager for the Hollywood Brands Candy Company and travels each week Monday through Friday. In order to give more time to his role, he has taken last week and this week off.

Performing is not new to the Cochran family, although Marie had been out of the field for five years before her debut with the Pleasanton Playhouse and Fred had not acted since he had a leading role in the Walnut Creek production of "Oklahoma" 10 years ago.

Playing opposite each other has been a remarkable experience, they both agree. "It's easier to learn lines," Marie said, "since we can rehearse at home."

"Since he traveled so much, Fred said he had a perfect opportunity to learn his lines. "All those nights in motels, I had nothing else to do but learn my lines," he said.

Marie, who teaches voice to 26 students during the week, has found her schedule remarkably full.

"Anna is the largest part I've ever had," she said. "With 'Dames', I got my feet wet. Now, I'm totally submerged."

"The King and I" runs three hours and 30 minutes and both Fred and Marie agree it is a big challenge to keep the show moving fast and to avoid having it drag.

"It is not a musical comedy," Marie pointed out. "This is more of a drama and we are on stage almost all of the time."

In playing opposite Marie, Fred said, he has discovered "she is a lot better actress than I thought she was. And I always thought she was pretty terrific. It's a very difficult part."

One of the couple's three children still at home, six-year-old Freddie is also in the show. He plays one of the king's 60-odd children.

When Freddie returned from the first children's rehearsal, he said to his father, "The director told us we were all your children, but I'm the only one who really is, aren't I?"

Fred assured him that was true but added, in the play, he would have a lot of pretend brothers and sisters.

Marie and Fred Cochran — as husband and wife at home enjoying a moment's respite from full schedules — and as Anna and the King of Siam elaborately costumed for the scene 'Shall We Dance?'

inside the arts

The Cochrans are putting their all into "The King and I", hoping to make this, the Pleasanton playhouse's sixth production into a money-making success. They are especially appreciative of the efforts of Gil and Pat Maines, Bev Hamlin and Recreation Coordinator Ann Carroll.

"It's going to be a good show," they both agreed. And after it's all over, the Cochrans plan to take a well-deserved rest.

They agree they would like to play opposite each other again. "It's been a very enjoyable experience," Marie said. But the logistics can be exhausting, so a break is in order.

"The King and I" will run Aug. 8-9, 14-16 and 20-23 at the Alameda County Fairgrounds Amphitheater.

Tickets are $3 for adults and $2 for students and groups. For further information, call 846-3202, extension 215.

Musical

The Moraga Summer Theater presents the musical comedy "Once Upon a Mattress" Friday and Saturday at 8:30 p.m.

The play is directed by Dennis Kohles, director of the upcoming production of "The King and I" at the Alameda County Fairgrounds.

A Tickets at $2.50 for adults and $2 for students and seniors will be on sale at the Campolindo High School door from the Moraga Park and Recreation Authority (376-2520).

Bluegrass comes to Livermore in Bicentennial benefit

An evening of true bluegrass entertainment is in store for music lovers Aug. 22 by arrangement of the Livermore Bicentennial Organization.

The Good Ole Persons, a group of four young women and a man, made its debut in San Francisco this year at the Freight and Salvage Coffeehouse.

The group, playing fiddle, guitar, mandolin, dulcimer, banjo and spoons, has since been favorably received at Los Angeles, Arcata, Weiser and Berkeley. The lead singer and the band's comedian have been especially popular.

General admission at $2.50 benefits Bicentennial celebrations for the Livermore community. For tickets, contact Cecilia Larsen at 447-6416.

The Good Ole Persons swing at 8:15 p.m. at the Livermore High School auditorium.

Art display at SR library

The works of Josephine Evans of Danville South are currently on exhibit at the San Ramon Valley Branch Library through Sept. 5.

Mrs. Evans works in acrylics with a side variety of subjects.

The San Ramon Valley Branch Library is open from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday, and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

A new park is set aside only a short drive away for residents of the Valley

The East Bay Regional Park District has acquired a new 970-acre park to be known as the Morgan Territory Regional preserve. Situated 9.4 miles north of Livermore and 13.6 miles southeast of Clayton, the $400,000 park is being held in 'land bank' status. The preserve affords a variety of landscape features including beetling cliffs, wooded tablelands, the Marsh Creek, meadows and streams.

When you play Blackwood should you use all four-notrump bids as ace requests? That is the simple way to play the convention. Later on you and your partners might want to play some four-notrump calls as strong bids in notrump. Before doing so, make sure that you are in complete agreement as to which bids aren't Blackwood. You can make this as complicated as you wish, but the best thing to do is to keep it simple.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
You rate an "A" in accomplishment today. Go after that big order, promote that innovative idea. You'll score financially.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
Someone you love will touch you early in the day with words or deeds. It will give you a rosy glow that lasts.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
You'll appreciate solitude early today. Toward evening, accept the invitation of someone you care about.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
Get out of the house. Go on a shopping spree. Lunch with friends. Have a ball socializing. It's a carefree day.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
Reconcile yourself to the fact that you're going to spend money today. It pleases you because others admire your purchase.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
A pleasant day you top by acquiring something you've long desired to own secretly, but have been afraid to buy.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)
You are still in the cycle of working well with large groups. You'll shine as a toastmaster or a moderator.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)
Promote ideas and plans close to your heart today. You're effective at converting people to your way of thinking.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)
Work comes easy to you today, so get an early start. Engage in some sport after responsibilities are out of the way.

When 4NT bid isn't Blackwood

Thus, as a starter agree that an immediate four notrump response to partner's opening bid of one, two or three notrump is a plain raise and does not ask for aces.

North's four notrump shows 15+ to 16 points. His plus was the three 10 spots. South jumps to six because he holds 17 points plus one 10 and two nines.

The slam makes easily when the jack of clubs drops on the second lead. If it failed to drop, South would have had to locate the queen of diamonds.

Ask the Jacobys

A reader from Illinois wants to know what the correct response to partner's opening bid of one diamond is when you hold:

♠ 9 7 6 4 ♥ A 10 2 ♦ J 3 ♣ K 9 7 4

The answer is that you should respond one notrump unless you have some special partnership agreement that you never bypass a four-card major suit. In that case you respond one spade.

With eight high-card points, you are too strong to pass and too weak to respond two clubs.

Believe it when you see it

Mike Zampa

School board members continue to cry wolf until someday soon when they'll get bitten right in the annotated budget.

Pressed like the rest of us to make outlay equal income, one board after another has threatened to blue pencil sports out of high schools. The thrust is not so much a drastic attempt at savings as it is a public relations ploy.

By threatening the school-related institution closest to the heart of a community, board members sharpen focus on their plight. Nobody listens when an alarm goes out concerning lack of funds for science texts. But let it spread that varsity football may be scrapped, and watch the groundswell of academic concern.

Of course the classic case occurred in San Francisco last winter when the school district suddenly discovered it couldn't afford sports. A halt in after school athletics was being grimly forecasted right in the middle of basketball season.

Parents, coaches, sports writers and civic leaders all expressed due alarm. Then they sat looking over their shoulder, waiting for some Robin Hood to charge out of the woods with instant cash relief.

Robin turned out to be rock impresario Bill Graham, who staged a sellout concert at Kezar Stadium and drummed up a couple of hundred thousand dollars to sustain high school sports. The funds also helped drama and music departments, but no one cared about that. Athletics was on the line.

Once Graham tallied the take from his musical mud bowl, he discovered he'd been had by the school district.

It had miraculously uncovered a stockpile of money that no one knew about before the crisis. Well, at least a pile that no one talked about.

Graham was left with knapsacks full of cash and a face flushed with anger. He wanted to be an angel, not a sucker. The school district had resorted to that fashionable gambit of crying bankruptcy when the outlook wasn't quite that bad. It rallied public support, but more important, shock-proofed itself in the face of actual budget cuts in the future. By crying wolf it conditioned San Franciscans to future economies.

As a bonus, it also received Graham's tidy little present. There's this state law that says you can't advertise a charity event, then welch on the gift Graham was forced to turn over the profits of his concert.

After the school district's "sting" he would rather have burned it, or purchased a quarter of a million worth of records or built a towering likeness of himself in yogurt.

Of course magnanimous Bill wasn't a total loser. For a few days he moved out of Herb Caen's column and into the front pages of San Francisco newspapers. Led Zeppelin couldn't even do that for him.

In the aftermath, schools wound up the loser in San Francisco's crisis.

When another athletic fund shortage crops up, people will harken back to the last episode, and glance at the new with tongue in cheek. The next time, community leaders will tell the school board to save itself.

Skepticism is already rearing up in the latest sports catastrophe, this one in Fremont. The school district is whimpering that it must abandon sports beginning this fall. The money, according to the board, is not there.

Accounts of the funding shortage have been properly grim. Some folks are reluctant to cross Fremont teams off their schedules just yet, however.

The North Coast Section, which last week finalized a football championship proposal, hasn't even considered a contingency plan should the Fremont schools pull out. "It's difficult to expect that Fremont schools are going to end sports," said NCS commissioner Paul Gaddini. "The community is a hotbed of high school sports."

The danger in Fremont is complacency. Given the lessons of San Francisco and other great cities that have saved prep sports, the local community is liable to feel a savior is on the way.

But a suburban town, Gaddini points out, is not a logical breeding ground for messiahs. Power in the suburbs is diffused through a labyrinth of elected and appointed officials. You won't find a Graham or an Alioto, leading a civic charge to rescue.

If Fremont waits for the cavalry to arrive, or for another ooboo at the school district, it could still be waiting at opening kickoff this fall.

If that happens, point menacing fingers at school administrators past who helped create the mood. Their plaintive cries and subsequent treasure hunts are jading the public.

Closer to home the wolf cries haven't been as pronounced. Schools affiliated with the EBAL jointly agreed last term that they faced financial burdens. Inflation, increased participation and the addition of girls sports is straining everybody's pocket book.

EBAL administrators stopped short of filing for bankruptcy, however. They talked about ways to cut spending, including a termination of after school athletics.

But they never hinted that doomsday was at hand. There have been contradicting reports in the last few days over the status of school budgets, and hints of surprise money discoveries.

Hopefully that will all stay in the background, and the public will be afforded an honest assessment of the financial picture.

Principals are predicting at least one year of grace before the crunch really hits the EBAL. When it does, hope that school leaders face it rationally and openly. The Caped Crusader won't answer the call anymore.

Livermore BC fights Saturday

Two years ago, bolstered by a $400 grant from then heavyweight champion George Foreman, the Livermore Boxing Club got off to a creaky start in the garage of founder Tony Ramirez.

Saturday night, after endless months of frustration and hustling for a buck, the club will stage its first big local boxing show. Ironically, it comes just five days after benefactor Foreman opened his own training center in Livermore.

Ramirez is hoping The Man will be in the audience at The Livermore Elks Lodge Saturday to witness a 12-bout card that will include three Golden Glove champions, and seven local fighters.

The show gets underway at 8 p.m., preceded by a dinner at 5:30. Tickets are $4 for adults, and $1.50 for youngsters under 12. They are available through Ramirez at 447-9523.

It will be a momentous occasion for the boxing coach, who has suffered through lean times with his club. For months on end membership balanced between a handful, and nothing. To this day there are just 14 members.

The youngsters have never had a ring to train in, and had to go begging for funds to purchase punching bags.

Only two of Ramirez' young fighters have ever entered major competitions.

Saturday could be the turning point for the LBC, its biggest boost since Foreman first arrived in town with a desire to bankroll kids' programs.

Many of Ramirez' fighters will get their first exposure to outside competition, and their first chance to box for hometown fans. And Tony may wind up with a few bucks to sustain the club.

The main event on the Saturday card will be a light heavyweight bout between Livermore's Rick Garcia, and Ron White of Modesto. Both will weigh 175 pounds. The two have met once previously in a three round exhibition. It was not judged, but was scored a draw by Ramirez.

Garcia is one of four brothers who will be fighting for Tony at the Elks Lodge. The youngest is nine-year old Ron, who weighs 97 pounds. Tim, a 12-year older, will fight at 120 pounds, and Tony, 15, at 132 pounds.

Dons take title as cage concludes

A new rivalry was joined, and an old one simmered up again as the Allied Brokers Summer Basketball League closed out its season Tuesday night at Amador Valley High School.

Playing for the first time as varsity opponents this summer, San Ramon and California high schools a titillating 54-43 game with the elder Wolves winning in sudden death overtime.

Meanwhile, long-time nemesis Amador and Dublin went down to the final second before Amador eked out a 54-52 decision.

The Dons finished as champions of the league by a game and a half over College Park. The Falcons were defeated Tuesday, 72-42 in an exhibition with the Amador Alumni.

San Ramon was forced to overcome a 16-7 first-quarter deficit in its game with Cal. The Wolves tied the game with seconds to play on Jim Hogeboom's field goal. Jeff Herrmann canned a free-throw in overtime to win it.

Hogeboom scored 18 points for San Ramon, and Herrmann added 11. Dave Tricaso contributed six.

For Cal, Craig Cline had 14 points, and Dan Nelson, nine.

Amador raced out to 12-0, and 19-8 leads over Dublin in the first period of their game, and by halftime, the Dons were up by 14.

But Dublin regrouped in the third quarter and outscored Amador, 23-11.

With 28 seconds left in the game, the Gaels' Kevin Huska tied the score at 52 with a pair of foul shots.

That climaxed a Dublin comeback from seven points down with just two minutes to play.

After Huska's pressure shots, Amador worked the ball down court to forward Rob Yackley. He dished off to Steve Mohatt who converted a foul line jump shot with eight seconds left for the victory.

Dublin's Cliff Johnson, and Mark Clark of Amador were leading scorers with 12 points each.

For the Dons, Mohatt, Jim Yackley and Chris DePrater both scored eight points. Rob Yackley had six.

Rick Wallis and Ed LaPerle both scored eight points for Dublin. Jerry Wright.

Will Biggs (12 points), Rich Hall (11), Jeff Hine and Phil Hansen, (10 each), paced the Amador Alumni in the win over College Park.

McKay locks gates for All-Star drill

CHICAGO (AP) — Coach John McKay of the College All-Stars locked the gates of Dyche Stadium Wednesday, saying he wanted some privacy with his players before going out to face the Pittsburgh Steelers.

"I want at least one day without some scouts standing in our huddle," McKay said, referring to talent appraisers for pro teams who have been attending All-Stars practice sessions.

After Wednesday's workout, there remained only a late afternoon practice Thursday for the Stars to polish the game plan they'll use against the 1974 Super Bowl champions Friday night.

The game will be televised nationally by ABC starting at 9:30 p.m.

McKay said establishing a ground game is essential for the All-Stars.

"If you can't run, you can't win—I guess Amos Alonzo Stagg was the first coach to say that," said McKay.

Ohlsen holds off Hexcel, 8-6

Amfac's Bob Ohlsen survived a couple of late crises in Livermore Slow Pitch Softball Tuesday night and earned an 8-6 victory over Hexcel.

Staked to a 6-3 lead after five innings, Ohlsen faltered in the top of the sixth, giving the Hexcels three runs on four hits. But after Kirk McClure tripled home the tying runs, Ohlsen stranded him at third base, then set down the opposition with just one hit in the seventh inning. Ohlsen was bailed out with two away in the seventh after yielding a single to Doug Dickeson. The base runner took off for second on a throw, but was cut down by a play from Ernie Sherman.

Meanwhile, in the bottom of the sixth inning, Amfac scored two runs on Rick Moreno's double to win the game. Moreno paced the Amfac attack with two doubles and a single and three runs-batted-in.

Hexcel carried a 3-0 lead into the bottom of the third inning, but Amfac rallied for four runs. Moreno drove in one with a single, and Rudy Oliver tripled home two more runs. The winners added a pair of scores in the fifth inning on Jim Brown's two-run double. Art Miller went 3-for-3 for Amfac.

In other action, Livermore-Dublin Disposal rode the pitching of Joe Vallaga to a 5-3 win over the Godfathers.

Vallaga pitched a seven-hitter for the winners. He retired the last seven batters of the ball game in succession.

The Disposals scored two runs in the first inning on Don Lavagetto's sacrifice fly and a single by Keith Dayton.

They added two more runs in the fourth inning on consecutive hits by Jim Whitehead, Bob Caldera and Jim Jessup. Vallaga chased home the other run with a sacrifice fly. Dayton's sacrifice produced another run in the fifth inning.

Dick Hebert, who went 2-for-3, knocked in a run for the Godfathers in the fourth inning. Bob Borges' infield out accounted for an earlier run.

In the only other game, Chubb Insurance outlasted Nazarene Church, 11-8.

Chubb had four hits as the leadoff batter, and drove in three runs. Mike Lawson went 2-for-3 and John Bonham's single produced two runs.

The losers' Sam Cancilla went 2-for-2 with a pair of RBI's.

Raider family day

The Oakland Raiders will hold their ninth annual Family Day at Santa Rosa Community College Saturday, 1 p.m. Gates open at noon and admission is free.

Activities will include demonstrations of offensive and defensive football, and a clinic on National Football League rule changes.

The Family Day will be at Bailey Field, 1501 Mendocino Ave., in Santa Rosa Take the College Ave. exit from Highway 101 to Mendocino Ave. Turn left and drive two blocks to the main entrance for Bailey Field.

George not likely to break camp

George Foreman's lease on the storefront gym at Livermore Shopping Center will expire in six months, but a Livermore realtor says it contains options for up to two years, and that it's unlikely the former heavyweight boxing champ will abandon the building.

Foreman dedicated his new training facility Monday in Livermore, and began workouts there Tuesday.

Realtor Pat Cross, who wrote up the lease on the building for Foreman, said several thousand dollars have already been spent in renovating the structure, and that it would be foolish to walk away from it in half a year.

"I know what they put in that building, and they'd be out of their mind to pull out," she said.

"They've spent several thousand to date on that place," Pat said. "and there's more to come. I'm sure they're not moving anywhere else."

Foreman's training center is minutes from his Livermore home on Mines Road. His only other headquarters was in the Mineral and Gem Exhibit Hall at the Alameda County Fairgrounds in Pleasanton.

The temporary quarters there proved costly to the former champion because he was forced to assemble, then disassemble his menagerie of boxing equipment. The ring alone was a $200 chore, and storage for the equipment amounted to $65 a day.

"He got the gym here because he didn't want to be traipsing back and forth," said Pat. "He'd get set up then have to turn around and take everything down again."

Livermore kids grab five blues

Veterans of the Livermore Recreation Department's track program earned five first place ribbons, two seconds and four third places Tuesday at an all comers track meet at Chabot College.

Junior Holly Hamm spearheaded the Livermore contingent, taking two firsts and a second in the meet featuring 150 Bay Area competitors. Holly won the 50-yard dash with a time of 8.3, three-tenths faster than Deena Kendrick who also had an outstanding meet.

Hamm finished second in the 220 at 38.6. Kendrick won in 38.2, the girls running in separate heats.

In the 880, Holly won with a time of 3:30. Kendrick's leap victory was a 12-7 leap in the long jump.

Ellen O'Donnell placed third in the 880 at 4:10. Among the boys, Bart Cole finished third in the 50 with a 7.9 clocking. He won his heat. Cole won the 880 in 3:03, while David Kusko took third at 3:15.
